this volume advocates a shift from the social constructivism found in the work of thomas luckmann and peter berger to a communicative constructivism that acknowledges communication as an embodied form of action in its own right according to which social actors in engaging in communicative action construct a material social reality that guides delimits and enables actions a study of the importance of understanding the role of communication in an age in which digitization and mediatization have extended the reach of communication to a global level and brought about the emergence of the communication society the communicative construction of reality shows how communication society does not merely replace modern society and its hierarchical institutions but complements it in a manner that continually results in conflicts leading to the refiguration of society as such it will appeal to scholars of sociology with interests in the sociology of knowledge communication and social theory
